

1           A RESOLUTION honoring Renfro Valley Entertainment Center upon the occasion
2 of its 80th anniversary.

3           WHEREAS, Renfro Valley Entertainment Center traces its roots to the 1930s, radio
4 WLS, and Chicago, where John Lair heard a singer, Bradley Kincaid, whose musical style 5 was familiar to John's upbringing in Rockcastle County, Kentucky; and

6           WHEREAS, after being given a job in the music library at WLS, John Lair helped 7 bring singers and musicians from his native Kentucky to the station. One of those singers,
8 Red Foley, helped John form "Renfro Valley Folks" with another entertainer, Whitey 9 Ford. Known as the Renfro Valley Barn Dance, the show was based in Cincinnati from its 10 formation on October 9, 1937. For two years, in Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio, the Renfro 11 Valley Barn Dance lived on while the Log Lodge and Tourist Court was being 12 constructed in Renfro Valley, Kentucky; and

13           WHEREAS, from the humble roots along the north bank of Renfro Creek, and 14 building upon the loyal audience of WLW radio, the doors opened wide as the WLW 15 announcer proclaimed, "And now friends, by way of the magic carpet of radio, we take 16 you to the big Old Barn in Renfro Valley Kentucky with John Lair and the Renfro Valley 17 Barn Dance"; and

18           WHEREAS, Louisville's WHAS radio station began the broadcasts during the 19 second year, with shows growing from just once per week on Saturday evenings to more 20 than 20 per week. A Sunday format, the Renfro Valley Gatherin', began in 1943 and is 21 now the second oldest continuous radio broadcast in the United States. The Country Store 22 program was broadcast live on CBS from the what is now the Music Store; and

23           WHEREAS, radio broadcasts declined in the 1950s as television became more 24 popular. Hollywood chose Renfro Valley in 1953 for the premier of the movie, "It 25 Happens Every Thursday," about the life of a small country newspaper. The Barn Dance 26 entertainers, movie stars, and all local newspapers became involved in the event. In 1956, 27 a series of television programs similar to the radio broadcast was filmed in Renfro Valley.

1 Times became tough in the early 1960s, when John Lair could no longer pay the 2 entertainers, and he was forced to divide the ticket sales with them. In the middle to late 3 1960s, several other movies and parts of movies were filmed in Renfro Valley; and

4 WHEREAS, in 1966, several well-known musicians, Ray Price, Willie Nelson, 5 Hank Cochran, and music publisher Hal Smith, leased Renfro Valley with the option of 6 buying, and it was eventually purchased by Hal Smith in 1968. Bluegrass artist Mac 7 Wiseman came to Renfro Valley and started the Renfro Valley Bluegrass Festival in 8 1970, and John Lair continued to spend every waking hour planning on purchasing it all 9 back. In 1976, John bought back Renfro Valley, and in the 1980s, started what is now 10 known as the Harvest Festival; and

11 WHEREAS, in 1984, the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tennessee, featured the Renfro 12 Valley show, and some performers traveled to Frankfort to perform in the House of 13 Representatives in an effort to make Renfro Valley the country music capital of 14 Kentucky. Renfro Valley became the location of the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame and 15 Museum; and

16 WHEREAS, the Lair family decided it could no longer manage Renfro Valley after 17 John Lair passed in 1985, and they sold it to a group headed by Warren Rosenthal, 18 founder of Jerry's and Long John Silver's restaurants, of Lexington, Kentucky. The New 19 Barn was built along with the Renfro village and RV park. Two partners, Ralph Gabbard, 20 CEO of Channel 27 in Lexington, and Glen Pennington, longtime entertainer at Renfro 21 Valley, produced several television shows in the early 1990s. In 1993, the "Christmas in 22 the Valley" show came to fruition, becoming the most successful show addition at Renfro 23 Valley, watched by church congregations, school groups, and busloads of other fans from 24 all over Kentucky and the eastern United States each year; and

25 WHEREAS, around 2000, the entirety of the Renfro Valley operation was given to 26 the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame and Museum. Don and Vera 27 Evans began making their appearances at Renfro Valley in front row seats nearly every

1 weekend, purchasing tickets to more than 1,100 shows before eventually purchasing
2 Renfro Valley. Other shows have been added, but the Evans's mission was to ensure that 3 Renfro Valley would never change;
