IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

MARCH 22, 2017

Ms. BALDWIN (for herself and Mrs. CAPITO) introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions

A BILL

To amend the Public Health Service Act to increase the number of permanent faculty in palliative care at accredited allopathic and osteopathic medical schools, nursing schools, social work schools, and other programs, including physician assistant education programs, to promote education and research in palliative care and hospice, and to support the development of faculty careers in academic palliative medicine.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

1 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

2 This Act may be cited as the “Palliative Care and 3 Hospice Education and Training Act”.

4 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

5 Congress makes the following findings:

6 (1) Palliative care is interdisciplinary, patient-
7 and family-centered health care for people with seri-
8 ous illnesses. This type of care is focused on pro-
9 viding patients with relief from the symptoms, pain,
10 and stress of a serious illness, whatever the diag-
11 nosis. The goal of palliative care is to relieve suf-
12 fering and improve quality of life for both patients
13 and their families. Palliative care is provided by a 14 team of doctors, nurses, social workers, physician as-15 sistants, chaplains, and other specialists who work
16 with a patient’s other health care providers to pro-
17 vide an extra layer of support, including assistance
18 with difficult medical decisionmaking and coordina-
19 tion of care among specialists. Palliative care is ap-
20 propriate at any age and at any stage in a serious
21 illness, and can be provided together with curative
22 treatment. Palliative care is not dependent on a life-
23 limiting prognosis and may actually help an indi-
24 vidual recover from illness by relieving symptoms,
25 such as pain, anxiety, or loss of appetite, while un-

1 dergoing sometimes difficult medical treatments or 2 procedures, such as surgery or chemotherapy.

3 (2) Hospice is palliative care for patients in 4 their last year of life. Considered the model for qual-
5 ity compassionate care for individuals facing a life-
6 limiting illness, hospice provides expert medical care,
7 pain management, and emotional and spiritual sup-8 port expressly tailored to the patient's needs and 9 wishes. In most cases, care is provided in the pa-
10 tient's home but may also be provided in free-
11 standing hospice centers, hospitals, nursing homes,
12 and other long-term care facilities. In 2014, an esti-
13 mated 1,600,000 to 1,700,000 patients received
14 services from hospice, including non-Medicare bene-
15 ficiaries. Nearly 48 percent of all Medicare dece-
16 dents in 2014 received care from a hospice program.
17 Hospice is a covered benefit under the Medicare pro-
18 gram. There were 4,025 Medicare-certified hospices
19 serving more than 1,300,000 Medicare beneficiaries
20 in 2014.

21 (3) Despite a high intensity of medical treat-
22 ment, many seriously ill patients experience trou-
23 bling symptoms, unmet psychological and personal 24 care needs, and high caregiver burden. Numerous 25 studies have shown that adding palliative care can

1 improve pain and symptom control, quality of life,
2 and family satisfaction with care.

3 (4) Health care providers need better education
4 about pain management and palliative care. Stu-
5 dents graduating from medical, nursing and other 6 health professional schools today have very little, if 7 any, training in the core precepts of pain and symp-
8 tom management, advance care planning, commu-
9 nication skills, and care coordination for patients
10 with serious or life-threatening illness. Even for spe-
11 cialists, training is lacking. For example, the Accred-
12 itation Council for Graduate Medical Education re-
13 quires oncology fellowship programs to integrate 14 competence in palliative care into their curriculum 15 and the American Society of Clinical Oncology has 16 recommended the integration of palliative care serv-
17 ices into standard oncology practice at the time a 18 person is diagnosed with metastatic or advanced 19 cancer. Yet a 2015 national survey found that hema-
20 tology/oncology fellows were “inadequately prepared” 21 to provide palliative care to their patients. Less than 22 half had a rotation in palliative care and 25 percent
23 of fellows reported no explicit teaching on key skills
24 such as assessing prognosis, conducting a family

1 meeting to discuss treatment options, and referral to 2 palliative care.

3 (5) The American Board of Medical Specialties
4 and the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical 5 Education provided formal subspecialty status for 6 hospice and palliative medicine in 2006, and the 7 Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services recognized
8 hospice and palliative medicine as a medical sub-
9 specialty in October of 2008.

10 (6) As of February 2017, there were a total of 11 127 hospice and palliative medicine training pro-12 grams accredited by the Accreditation Council for 13 Graduate Medical Education. For the 2016–2017
14 academic year, these programs were training 327
15 physicians in hospice and palliative medicine. Some 16 programs include an additional track in pediatrics,
17 geriatrics, research, or public health. Fewer than a 18 dozen of these ACGME-accredited training programs
19 focus solely on pediatric palliative medicine though 20 data show an increasing prevalence of children with 21 complex chronic conditions who could benefit from 22 such specialized care.

23 (7) There is a large gap between the number of 24 healthcare professionals with palliative care training 25 and the number required to meet the needs of the 1 growing population of individuals with serious or 2 life-threatening illness. In 2015, 75 percent of 3 United States hospitals with 50 or more beds had a

4 palliative care program though not all these pro-
5 grams have in place the interdisciplinary team nec-
6 essary to provide comprehensive, high-quality pallia-7 tive care. Hospital data reported to the National 8 Palliative Care Registry show that in 2015 only 44
9 percent of programs met national staffing standards
10 set by the Joint Commission, even when including 11 unfunded positions. Among the 56 percent of pro-
12 grams without complete interdisciplinary teams, 30
13 percent have no physician, 10 percent have no ad-
14 vanced practice registered nurse or RN, 54 percent
15 have no social worker, and 70 percent have no chap-
16 lain. Looking at just physician specialists, 2017 pro-
17 jections by the George Washington University
18 Health Workforce Institute show that current train-19 ing capacity for hospice and palliative medicine is 20 not sufficient to provide hospital-based care and 21 keep pace with growth in the population of adults
22 over 65 years old. The shortages are exacerbated 23 when considering the current rapid expansion of 24 community-based palliative care, such as in out-
25 patient and home-based settings. A separate survey

1 of physicians in the field found that, if the rate of 2 those entering and leaving hospice and palliative
 3 medicine maintains, there will be no more than 1
 4 percent absolute growth in this physician workforce
 5 in 20 years, during which time the number of per-6 sons eligible for palliative care will grow by over 20
 7 percent. The study’s authors project this will result 8 in a ratio of one palliative medicine physician for 9 every 26,000 seriously ill patients by 2030.

10 (8) According to the National Academy of Med-11 icine, there is a “need for better understanding of 12 the role of palliative care among both the public and 13 professionals across the continuum of care so that 14 hospice and palliative care can achieve their full po-
 15 tential for patients and their families”.

16 SEC. 3. PALLIATIVE CARE AND HOSPICE EDUCATION AND 17 TRAINING.

18 (a) IN GENERAL.—Part D of title VII of the Public
