Enrolled Copy

1	CONCURRENT RESOLUTION CALLING FOR THE
2	CREATION OF A NATIONAL FEDERALISM TASK FORCE
3	2020 GENERAL SESSION
4		STATE OF UTAH
5	Chief Sponsor: Kay J. Christofferson
6	Senate Sponsor: David P. Hinkins
7	Cosponsors:	Marsha Judkins	Douglas V. Sagers
8	Cheryl K. Acton	Karianne Lisonbee	Mike Schultz
9	Carl R. Albrecht	Phil Lyman	Travis M. Seegmiller
10	Kyle R. Andersen	A. Cory Maloy	Rex P. Shipp
11	Melissa G. Ballard	Kelly B. Miles	V. Lowry Snow
12	Stewart E. Barlow	Calvin R. Musselman	Robert M. Spendlove
13	Brady Brammer	Merrill F. Nelson	Keven J. Stratton
14	Walt Brooks	Derrin R. Owens	Mark A. Strong
15	Scott H. Chew	Lee B. Perry	Steve Waldrip
16	Steve R. Christiansen	Val L. Peterson	Raymond P. Ward
17	Kim F. Coleman	Candice B. Pierucci	Christine F. Watkins
18	Brad M. Daw	Val K. Potter	Logan Wilde
19	Stephen G. Handy	Susan Pulsipher	Mike Winder
20	Timothy D. Hawkes	Paul Ray
21	Jon Hawkins	Marc K. Roberts
22	Dan N. Johnson	Adam Robertson

23

24 LONG TITLE

25 General Description:

26 This concurrent resolution calls for the creation of a National Federalism Task Force for 27 the purpose of convening a series of federalism summits.

28 Highlighted Provisions:

H.C.R. 16

29	This resolution:
30	 highlights the framers of the United States Constitution's original intent regarding
31	the different roles and responsibilities of state governments and the federal
32	government;
33	 encourages the restoration and maintenance of clear, discernible divisions in the
34	roles and responsibilities of state governments and the federal government; and
35	 calls for coordination in the creation of a National Federalism Task Force for the
36	purpose of convening a series of federalism summits.
37	Money Appropriated in this Bill:
38	None
39	Other Special Clauses:
40	None
41
42	Be it resolved by the Legislature of the state of Utah, the Governor concurring therein:
43	WHEREAS, our unique governing system in the United States was designed to federate
	diverse states and people for vital national concerns, while preserving to the American people
44	diverse states and people for vital national concerns, while preserving to the American people
44 45	diverse states and people for vital national concerns, while preserving to the American people the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and
45	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and
45 46	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice;
45 46 47	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James
45 46 47 48	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government
45 46 47 48 49	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government that was part "national" (called the federal government today) and part "federal" (a federation
45 46 47 48 49 50	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government that was part "national" (called the federal government today) and part "federal" (a federation of the states), with clear divisions in the roles and responsibilities assigned to the national
45 46 47 48 49 50 51	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government that was part "national" (called the federal government today) and part "federal" (a federation of the states), with clear divisions in the roles and responsibilities assigned to the national government and to the state governments;
45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government that was part "national" (called the federal government today) and part "federal" (a federation of the states), with clear divisions in the roles and responsibilities assigned to the national government and to the state governments; WHEREAS, in the Federalist Papers No. 51, James Madison specified that a clear
45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government that was part "national" (called the federal government today) and part "federal" (a federation of the states), with clear divisions in the roles and responsibilities assigned to the national government and to the state governments; WHEREAS, in the Federalist Papers No. 51, James Madison specified that a clear division of governing responsibilities was essential to this new form of government to provide
45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54	the benefits of self-government - a form of government that is efficient, effective, and accountable - and amplifies their governing voice; WHEREAS, to accomplish this objective, in the Federalist Papers No. 39, James Madison and the other framers of the constitution designed a new hybrid form of government that was part "national" (called the federal government today) and part "federal" (a federation of the states), with clear divisions in the roles and responsibilities assigned to the national government and to the state governments; WHEREAS, in the Federalist Papers No. 51, James Madison specified that a clear division of governing responsibilities was essential to this new form of government to provide "a double security to the rights of the people," against overreach from either the state

Enrolled Copy

58Constitution, James Wilson marveled at "the accuracy with which the line is drawn between59the powers of the general government and those of the particular state governments," observing60"the powers are as minutely enumerated as was possible.";61WHEREAS, during the New York Ratifying Convention of the United States62Constitution, Alexander Hamilton admonished that "this balance between the national and state63governments ought to be dwelt on with peculiar attention, as it is of the utmost importance. It64forms a double security to the people.";65WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and66responsibilities between the federal government and the states today;67WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective,68or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they69increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter70anymore;71WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia,72Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the73fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and74when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril.";75WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who76are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system75WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and ba	57	WHEREAS, during the Pennsylvania Ratifying Convention of the United States
60"the powers are as minutely enumerated as was possible.";61WHEREAS, during the New York Ratifying Convention of the United States62Constitution, Alexander Hamilton admonished that "this balance between the national and state63governments ought to be dwelt on with peculiar attention, as it is of the utmost importance. It64forms a double security to the people.";65WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and66responsibilities between the federal government and the states today;67WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective,68or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they69increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter70anymore;71WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia,75WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia,76fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and74when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril.";75WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who76are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system75of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them.";78WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and79responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the	58	Constitution, James Wilson marveled at "the accuracy with which the line is drawn between
61WHEREAS, during the New York Ratifying Convention of the United States62Constitution, Alexander Hamilton admonished that "this balance between the national and state63governments ought to be dwelt on with peculiar attention, as it is of the utmost importance. It64forms a double security to the people.";65WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and66responsibilities between the federal government and the states today;67WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective,68or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they69increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter70anymore;71WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia,73Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the73fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and74when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril.";75WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who76are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system77of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them.";78WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and79responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the78preservation of our system; and <t< td=""><td>59</td><td colspan="3">the powers of the general government and those of the particular state governments," observing</td></t<>	59	the powers of the general government and those of the particular state governments," observing
 Constitution, Alexander Hamilton admonished that "this balance between the national and state governments ought to be dwelt on with peculiar attention, as it is of the utmost importance. It forms a double security to the people."; WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and responsibilities between the federal government and the states today; WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	60	"the powers are as minutely enumerated as was possible.";
 governments ought to be dwelt on with peculiar attention, as it is of the utmost importance. It forms a double security to the people."; WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and responsibilities between the federal government and the states today; WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	61	WHEREAS, during the New York Ratifying Convention of the United States forms a double security to the people."; WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and responsibilities between the federal government and the states today; WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	62	Constitution, Alexander Hamilton admonished that "this balance between the national and state
 WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and responsibilities between the federal government and the states today; WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	63	governments ought to be dwelt on with peculiar attention, as it is of the utmost importance. It responsibilities between the federal government and the states today; WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	64	forms a double security to the people.";
 WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	65	WHEREAS, by all accounts, there is no clearly discernible division of roles and or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	66	responsibilities between the federal government and the states today;
 increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	67	WHEREAS, many Americans feel frustrated that government is not efficient, effective, anymore; WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	68	or accountable, and sensing that something is wrong with our governing system, they
 WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	69	increasingly disengage from government because they believe their voices do not matter
 Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	70	anymore;
 fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	71	WHEREAS, in their joint dissent in NFIB v. Sebelius, Justices Kennedy, Scalia, when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril."; WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	72	Thomas, and Alito, warned of the consequences of allowing our system to atrophy, writing "the
 WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	73	fragmentation of power produced by the structure of our Government is central to liberty, and are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	74	when we destroy it, we place liberty at peril.";
 of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them."; WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	75	WHEREAS, in his farewell address, George Washington admonished all officers who
 WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	76	are oath-bound under Article VI of the United States Constitution that "to preserve [this system responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	77	of reciprocal checks] must be as important as to institute them.";
 preservation of our system; and WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation: 	78	WHEREAS, divisions, limits, and balance in the various governing roles and
81 WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to 82 pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation:	79	responsibilities, and the self-governing engagement of the people, are essential to the
82 pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation:	80	preservation of our system; and
	81	WHEREAS, this singular system is the solution to securing the rights of the people to
83 NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Legislature of the state of Utah, the	82	pursue their unique visions of happiness over an expansive and diverse nation:
	83	NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Legislature of the state of Utah, the

84 Governor concurring therein, calls upon the National Conference of State Legislatures, the

- 3 -

H.C.R. 16

- 85 Council of State Governments, and the American Legislative Exchange Council to coordinate
- 86 in the creation of a National Federalism Task Force for the purpose of convening a series of
- 87 federalism summits to consider and develop plans for restoring and maintaining clearly
- 88 discernible divisions in the roles and responsibilities of the national government and the states
- 89 for the benefit and engagement of the American people.
- 90 BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be sent to the speaker of
- 91 the House of Representatives, president of the Senate, and chairs of the federalism or
- 92 federal-state relations committee in each state.